

*"A great architect is not made by way of a brain nearly so much as he is made by way of a cultivated, enriched heart."
Frank Lloyd Wright*

Frank Lloyd Wright, 1867-1959, was a world-famous architect who founded a form of architecture, based on a buildings ability to harmonize with it's environment, called "Organic Architecture". During the U. S. depression, he was inspired to design a distinctly American style that was affordable to the common working person and created a series of small, simple homes which he believed to represent the democratic ideals of the United States. He called them Usonian, an abbreviation for United States of North America.
